

Before investing, people are often reminded to review their investment portfolio to make sure there is a certain level of diversification. The natural resources sector, which includes mineral resources, is an area of investment that can be very profitable. At the same time, investors should have a strategy and think about the expected returns in the short, medium and long term, depending on their plan. For many people, these steps are rather complex, and they slow down the decision-making process. This is why Cartier Resources has provided a simplified flowchart to help guide you in this matter.

INVESTING IN QUÉBEC'S MINERAL RESOURCES: DO I KNOW MY STUFF?

The strategy of Cartier Resources relies on well thought-out work conducted near established high-value areas. This approach is realistic and feasible, and offers a better chance of success. For more information and for help in planning your investment, feel free to contact us.
